NGA Webinar

Caring for Someone with Alzheimer's and Dementia

About the course:

This webinar will offer real-world practical tips on how to care for someone with Alzheimer's and dementia. The webinar will include understanding the skills required to respond to certain behaviors, and role-playing of specific behavior scenarios to ensure positive outcomes.

Participants will understand triggers, and the areas of lost functional abilities that affect behavior. Participants will also learn strategies for success and redirecting tools when dealing with communication, wandering rummaging, hiding things, aggressive behavior, bathing, and more.

The webinar course will be held

Tuesday, November 15, 2016 at 1:00 pm Eastern (noon Central, 11:00 Mountain, 10:00 Pacific).

This webinar will last for 60 minutes.

About the presenter:

Scott Greenberg is currently president and CEO of ComForcare Senior Services, a private duty home health care agency in Palm Beach, Florida. Scott just completed his term as president of the Florida State Guardianship Association and now retains his position on the executive board as immediate past president. In addition, he serves as a board member of the National Guardianship Association. He is the treasurer for the Partnership For Aging and is on the advisory council for the Area Agency on Aging. He has served on Alzheimer's Community Care's special goodwill task force, and is a former AmeriCorp volunteer. He also developed and is part of the Lifespan Education and Resource Network speaker series and developed a second speaker series dedicated to family caregivers. Scott has written an award-winning book entitled, Oh My God, I'm Getting Older and So is My Mom, and hosts a weekly radio show on 900AM The Talk with the same title. Scott received his National Certified Alzheimer's Educator designation from NCBAC in July 2014.

He is a frequent speaker on topics relevant to the senior community and has most recently spoken at FAU Life-long Learning Society, Florida State Guardianship Association annual statewide conference, BMO Private Bank and Ruth Rales Jewish Family Services. Scott is proud of his collaboration with Alpert Jewish Family & Children's Services in building a cultural competency in Holocaust caregiving. Scott has also recently been a guest on numerous radio shows around the country including KFWB Los Angeles California, KKNW Seattle Washington, KXYL Brownwood Texas, AM 600 WMT Cedar Rapids Iowa, among others discussing senior issues important to boomers and their parents.
